

National EMN-Conference 2013

Reception systems for asylum seekers – a comparative perspective

Stockholm, 7 May 2013

Background

In 2012, the number of asylum seekers coming to Sweden reached the highest level since 1992. In 2013, the numbers are expected to rise even further, from about 44 000 applicants in 2012 to about 54 000. This strong influx causes some considerable challenges, not only in terms of an efficient decision-making processes, but in particular also for the reception system for asylum seekers, which has to adapt to fluctuating and increasing numbers. For several years, Sweden has already faced a shortage of housing for asylum seekers – one example of a problem that will need to be further addressed. Further to this, the Swedish Migration Board and other actors have the ambition to facilitate the transition of asylum seekers from the reception system to either settlement and integration in municipalities, in cases of positive decisions on applications, or return to the countries of origin in cases of negative decisions.

This conference, which is organized in the framework of the European Migration Network (EMN) and related to one of the EMN study topics for 2013, will look into the evolution and the state of play of the Swedish reception system for asylum seekers and discuss its strengths and weaknesses in terms of quality, efficiency and flexibility from a variety of perspectives. In a second step, the Swedish system will also be analyzed in a European context by studying examples from other EU Member States, which have recently experienced similar challenges as Sweden in terms of rising numbers of asylum seekers from different parts of the world.

The Conference will be held on 7 May 2013 at Stockholm City Conference Centre, 'Music Hall' (Musiksalen) at Norra Latin, Drottninggatan 71b, Stockholm.
